

Chaudhari, Pradip

Dr. Chaudhari is an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at the Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California and the Associate Research Director in the Division of Emergency and Transport Medicine at Children's Hospital Los Angeles, where he also works clinically as an attending physician in the Emergency Department. Dr. Chaudhari attended Wake Forest University for his undergraduate and medical school education. He then completed his residency in Pediatrics at Children's Hospital Los Angeles followed by his fellowship in Pediatric Emergency Medicine at Boston Children's Hospital, prior to returning to Children's Hospital Los Angeles in his current position. Dr. Chaudhari performs clinical research in the emergency department, focusing on common infectious diseases and trauma in the acute care setting.