

Radovic, Ana

Dr. Radovic is an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Pittsburgh. She is a subspecialist in Adolescent Medicine. Dr. Radovic completed her undergraduate and medical school at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. She completed pediatrics residency and adolescent medicine fellowship at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center, and also received a Masters in Clinical Science at the University of Pittsburgh. Dr. Radovic is a mental health services researcher who studies interventions that utilize technology to improve health services for adolescents with depression and has specifically focused on addressing negative attitudes and beliefs in teens and parents to facilitate uptake of treatment. She also has interests in integrated behavioral health and social media. Dr. Radovic is currently an early career investigator funded by National Institute of Mental Health on a K23 award. She lives in Pittsburgh with her husband, a neurologist and specialist in headache, and her two children.